PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

It is a pleasure, an honor and a privilege to serve as your President once again. I am so grateful you selected such a strong board of wonderful women to serve along with me this term. What an exciting year we have ahead of us! What a lot of work we have yet to do. Look forward to news of our 60th Anniversary Celebration this summer.

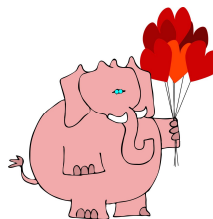

When the U.S. Constitution was drafted there was no provision made for political parties. Yet they sprung up naturally from the earliest days of our republic. In Federalist Paper No. 10 James Madison made a case for federalism based on the American tendency to form "factions." Surely, when you put one hundred citizens in a room you will not easily form consensus; everyone has a differing opinion. Madison was concerned that we avoid a tyranny of the majority. The rights of the minority to dissent should be respected. He wanted adoption of the U.S. Constitution because it protected those rights (i.e., representation in Congress and the Electoral College).

Years later, when Alexis de Tocqueville wrote Democracy in America (1832) one of the things he was amazed by was the energetic and somewhat chaotic nature of American business and politics. Although the form of government was representative, the government could not exist without the will of the people. "Americans of all ages, all stations of life, and all types of dispositions are forever forming associations," he wrote. Americans, at this point, no longer identified as Federalists and Anti-Federalist, but in 30 years they wouldn't be identified as Whigs and Democratic-Republicans either. By the Civil War we had the two major political parties as we identify them today.

We, ladies, identify as Republicans. Our role as a club is to support our party's principles, support the party's candidates while running for office, helping them govern when in office, and providing a watchdog for government when out of power. We are going to have an interesting year. Our federal government, for the first time in years has a Republican President in Donald Trump and a Republican Congress. While they need our support, our greatest need is a bit closer to home. One vote shy of a supermajority, our state legislature is stacked against the Republicans. We must serve in this instance as the watchdog of our government. YOLANDA KNAAK, our Legislation Chair, along with her committee, will diligently follow various measures through the state legislature. We must do our part. She is looking for committee members to help with this task. Yolanda will be speaking at our February luncheon to simplify our responses to members of the legislature on impending legislation.

On a sad note, TY COBB, a longtime Nevada Republican and a titan of Republican politics in Nevada, died December 7th. Our long-term members remember him as a supporter of our IVCBRW Club and he could be counted upon to be an entertaining speaker at our events. Graduating from the University of Reno (UNR) in 1962, he was commissioned a U.S. Army officer, serving two tours in Vietnam. He retired as a colonel, taught at the U.S. Military Academy as a tenured professor, and served in several roles for the federal government. He was named a Distinguished Graduate of UNR. He founded the National Security Forum and was CEO of the Northern Nevada network. He will be missed.

As a last word I'd like to end with another quote by de Tocqueville, "Righteous women, in their circle of influence, beginning in the home, can turn the world around." Let's be those righteous women.

Your Lady in Red, Fuzi Cornell

About our Speaker,
YOLANDA KNAAK

At our luncheon on February 11, 2025, Yolanda Knaak will share how as a group we can impact our Nevada State Legislature and the importance of election integrity.

Yolanda headed up the Legislative Chair for The Incline Village/Crystal

Bay Republican Women's Club and the Nevada Federation of Republican Women since January 2018. She currently manages two Nevada Family Trusts.

Yolanda recently ran for Trustee of Incline Village General Improvement District (IVGID). Even though she didn't win, she has remained involved with IVGID issues and plans to run again in the near future.

Yolanda has a Master's degree from the University of California, Los Angeles (UCLA). She is retired from a life-long career as a Registered Nurse (RN). Early in her career she worked for St John's Hospital on the Medical-Surgical Floor and became a Wound Specialist. She then served others as a Wound Specialist in her own business for more than 3 years. After her daughters were born, Yolanda worked for 10 years as an Advice Nurse for Kaiser Permanente. For 7 years she was a Home Health nurse and supervised a branch of Home Health for 5 years.

VALUES: I support and uphold the US Constitution and Nevada State Law. I value our military, veterans, police, businesses, students and the elderly. Lastly, I believe in the saying, "Do Justice, Love Mercy and Walk Humbly" – from the Book of Micah.

A LITTLE HUMOR FROM OUR FRIENDS AT THE BABYLON BEE

Aw, Man: Columbia Student Just Graduated With DEI Degree

Prospects have dimmed considerably for local woman Violet Weber, who just graduated in December from Columbia with a degree in Diversity, Equity and Inclusion Studies. With DEI programs being abolished across the country, the outlook for people trained to root out neo-colonial white power structures has never been worse. "Really, really poor timing here," sighed Weber as she filled out another Wendy's application. "There's just no one interested any more in learning how to be less white and more gay. It was such good business in 2021."

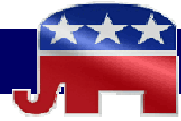

After spending four years and thousands of dollars earning her degree, Weber nearly landed a job learning how to make pickles for a local pickler, but was ultimately beat out by a hobo who had more business experience. "It's been so disheartening," said Weber. "I offered to help make their pickles more queer-friendly, but the guy just stared at me. He seemed totally uninterested in a business-wide evaluation of how his three employees could dismantle the colonialism inherent in the pickling business. Such a loss."

At publishing time, Weber had been spotted out on the street corner holding a sign reading "Will call you racist for food."

If it be asked, What is the most sacred duty and the greatest source of our security in a Republic? The answer would be, An inviolable respect for the Constitution and Laws – the first growing out of the last A sacred respect for the constitutional law is the vital principle, the sustaining energy of a free government.

COMMUNITY AFFAIRS

Well, here we are in the New Year. As Republican women, we have much to celebrate with the Inauguration of Donald Trump. There is much to be grateful for and let's pray that President Trump will be kept safe.

As for our local community, we have nothing to celebrate. Two weeks into their term, our Trustee's have fired the new GM for no apparent cause, only because he was hired by 3 members of the former Board of Trustee's. I guess they have that right.

I, along with others, went to the Special Board of Trustee's meeting on Thursday January 16th.

Many people got up and spoke in defense of Mr. Walrack, but to no avail as the Trustees didn't listen, their minds were made up before the meeting. All I can say is good luck to them, and let's hope we do not suffer with the results of their actions.

I was not able to attend the Community Forum this past week, but printed out the recap of the meeting. There were many subjects discussed, more than I have room to print in this article. As I have said in the past, please go to the link at ivcbcommunityforum@gmail.com to read the recap, and if you want to come in person, the meeting is on the first and third Friday mornings from 9 to 10 am at the library. You can also listen to the actual meeting by going to <https://youtu.be/DWOqSf9txjk>.

As we all know the fires in Los Angeles have been tragic. So many homes and lives were lost in such a short amount time. I lived and grew up in Los Angeles and experienced fires close to me. The evacuation in both large fires were chaotic, as it could be here should we find ourselves in a similar situation. Let's pray that this doesn't happen here! We sent several of our own equipment and personnel down there to help with crews from California.

We now have a new Assistant Chief of the North Lake Tahoe Fire District, Russell Barnum. And, the Sheriff's Department here is now fully staffed with 4 Sergeants and 16 Deputies. So, make sure that you watch your speed.

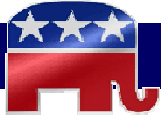

Please also remember that the other community organization that is very informative here in Incline is the Conversation Café, which meets on Thursday mornings from 10 to 11:30 am at the Aspen Grove meeting house. Come and join us for some lively conversation and information.

Well, that's all for this month! Stay safe and hope to see you all at the February 11th meeting and be informed about the goings-on with the Legislature which begins on February 2nd. Our own Yolanda Knaak will be our speaker.

Shirley Appel

WHATCHA THINK? It may be a hidden blessing that Trump "lost" in 2020, almost as if by grand design for him to eventually become the most consequential leader in modern history. He's had four years to reflect on his first term and start anew as a much wiser and honed person with a completely new team. But more importantly, this time Trump has America's overwhelming support. He didn't before. Because of this, Trump's second term will be much better and effective than if he had won his second term in 2020. We are literally at the footstep of an American renaissance.

Amodei Assigned to Natural Resources Subcommittees

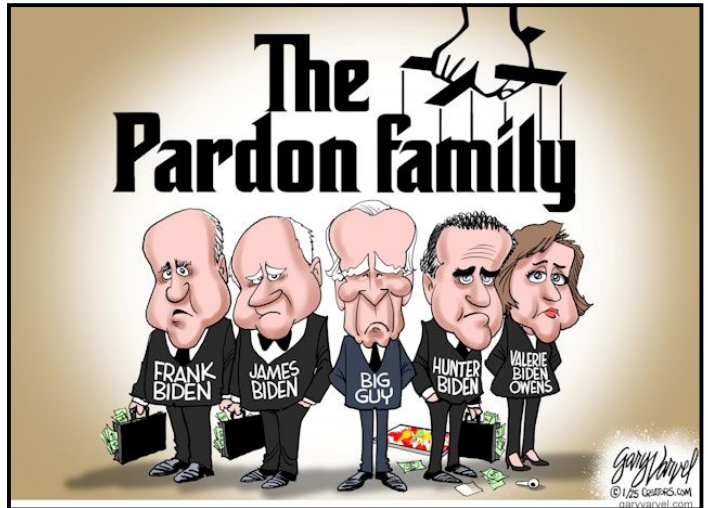

Washington, DC — Rep. Mark Amodei recently issued the following statement after being assigned to serve on the Natural Resources Subcommittee on Federal Lands and the Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations in the 119th Congress:

“This Congress, I’m thrilled to have a seat at the table on two influential Natural Resources subcommittees,” said Rep. Mark Amodei. “The Subcommittee on Federal Lands offers me a powerful platform to continue to be a relentless advocate for Nevada’s lands priorities, especially in passing Nevada lands bills, which are critical to our state’s economic prosperity. At the same time, it allows me to present commonsense solutions to protect our unique landscapes and preserve our way of life.

“I’m also excited to leverage my experience on the Appropriations Committee in my role on the Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations, where I will work to ensure the accountability and efficient operations of our federal agencies. Oversight of the federal bureaucracy and eliminating waste were a driving force behind a historic presidential turnout of 2024, and I’m honored to play a part in advancing transparency in that process.”

Joe Biden’s Disgraceful Departure

By Mark Alexander

As Donald Trump was preparing to leave office in January 2021, it was clear that Joe Biden’s “victory” in the 2020 election was fabricated from three dark political strategies. The first was collaboration between Democrat Party socialists and their deep state operatives to undermine Trump’s presidency – seeded by Barack Obama and Hillary Clinton hacks even before Trump’s 2016 election. The second factor was the Demos’ successful strategy to ignite and choreograph their constituents’ violent “summer of rage” riots nationwide three months before the election, based on the deceit of their “systemic racism” lie. The third and most effective was the Demos’ strategy to use the ChiCom Virus pandemic to justify their massive bulk-mail ballot fraud strategy.

This trio combined as a three-strike Trump takedown.

For this reason, I have argued since Trump’s historic 2024 comeback, that he and JD Vance would be tasked with more than the formidable challenge of cleaning up the domestic and foreign policy mess that Biden and Harris made. In order to restore Trump’s successful domestic and foreign policy strategies, Trump will also have to clean up the mess that made Biden and Harris.

Biden's final actions while exiting the White House exemplified the corruption of his entire presidency. It is no small irony that Biden would leave office on Martin Luther King Day because, over the past five decades, Biden and his fellow Democrats have turned MLK's dream into a nightmare for tens of millions of Americans.

Biden's dark "oligarchy" farewell address was a bookend to a career of unmitigated lies, including the BIG Lie that Trump was backed by more billionaires than Harris. In fact, according to a pre-election review of federal election records, "At least 83 billionaires – two of them centibillionaires with a net worth of more than $100 billion each – are supporting Harris, while 52 billionaires, one a centibillionaire, back Trump."

Then there was all the dark money funneled into the Harris campaign by billionaire leftist George Soros and others who backed her after Nancy Pelosi and her fellow Democrat power-brokers booted Biden to the curb.

Biden's farewell remarks were a metaphorical caricature of the rise of a thuggish political oligarch on the public dole. Likewise, the Oval Office exit interview that followed was equally infused with lies. There were his delusional claims, including this whopper: "Compared to four years ago, America is stronger. ... During my presidency, I've increased America's power in every dimension." A day later, "President Democracy" attempted to rewrite our Constitution with a bizarre claim crafted by his leftist puppeteers that the Equal Rights Amendment is now the "law of the land."

But it was Biden's unpardonable pardons issued in his final weeks — and final minutes in office — that have drawn the most attention and fire.

Over the last 30 days, when most of the Leftmedia talkingheads and scribes were focused on whether Donald Trump would issue pardons to January 6 protesters, Joe Biden started his pardon party by issuing a get-out-of-jail-free card to Hunter Biden, despite repeatedly promising he would never do that because "No one is above the law."

That was just another entry to the bottomless list of Biden lies over the course of his last 50 years.

Then, Biden commuted the sentences of 1,499 people and pardoned another 39 convicts to divert the news cycle attention from the corrupt pardon favor for his son. That was followed just before Christmas with his commuting the sentences of 37 of 40 federal death row inmates, some being the most evil people in federal custody.

Biden began the New Year commuting another 2,500 sentences.

Hours before leaving office, despite warnings from Demos not to issue preemptive pardons, Biden issued preemptive pardons for Anthony Fauci, GEN Mark Milley, and the J6 inquisitors, including witness-tampering former Rep. Liz Cheney. "I believe in the rule of law," said Biden, "but these are exceptional circumstances, and I cannot in good conscience do nothing."

Finally, just minutes before Trump took his oath of office, Biden extended pardons to his immediate family members — to the astonishment of many of Biden's Leftmedia defenders, including even CNN leftist Jake Tapper. Apparently, this exceeded even Tapper's tolerance for hypocrisy. He posted combined links to the Biden family pardons with a link to a 2020 CNN article just before Trump left office, about Biden's concern that Trump might issue preemptive pardons to family members (which he did not do). According to Biden then: "It concerns me in terms of what kind of precedent it sets and how the rest of the world looks (at) us as a nation of laws and justice. ... You're not going to see, uh, um, in our administration, that kind of approach to pardons."

President Trump and Border Czar Homan are returning illegals

By Emmy Griffin

President Donald Trump and his team have hit the ground running in terms of fulfilling a major campaign promise — namely, cleaning up the border and deporting illegal aliens. As Border Czar Tom Homan recently stated, “It’s not okay to violate the laws of this country. We have millions of people standing in line, taking the test, doing their background investigation, paying the fees that want to come in the right way. So if you’re in the country illegally, you got a problem.”

Last week, Trump deployed 1,500 troops to the southern border. These military personnel aren’t there to help with paperwork; they are being dispatched to actually enforce our border laws and support the thousands of National Guardsmen and Customs and Border Patrol (CBP) agents already there. Since these troops are active duty, they cannot do the job of law enforcement in terms of making arrests or detaining anyone. They can, however, coordinate logistics and transportation with CBP, whose agents can make arrests. These 1,500 troops can also help erect barriers such as barbed wire fencing and other deterrents.

On the flip side, should President Trump enact the Insurrection Act of 1807, that would enable these troops to begin actually policing the border. That necessity will be assessed by Secretary of Defense Pete Hegseth and Secretary of Homeland Security Kristi Noem. They will issue a report in 90 days advising the president on his next steps to secure the border. In the meantime, Trump has also declared a national emergency at the border and classified drug cartels as terrorist organizations.

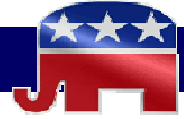

These actions could potentially free up the troops legally without triggering the Insurrection Act.

Border Czar Homan has called Chicago “ground zero” for immigration enforcement. Unfortunately, ICE’s job is being made exponentially harder because of “sanctuary city” policies. That means ICE is on its own when it comes to apprehending illegal alien criminals, as local law enforcement won’t (or can’t) help them. ICE is also being barred from going into prisons and taking away illegals. On top of all that, Chicago Mayor Brandon Johnson is fearmongering by claiming ICE will enter public schools and arrest illegal immigrant children.

In probably the most hilarious development of the weekend, President Trump had to remind the president of Colombia who was boss. This past weekend, the United States sent two planes full of Colombian nationals back to their country as part of the deportations that are now underway. Colombia’s unpopular socialist president, Gustavo Petro, adamantly refused to let the American planes land. The United States obtained clearance to fly them back to Colombia, and Petro’s last-minute order forced the planes to turn around. So what did President Trump do? He threatened to slap Colombia with a 25% tariff on all goods coming into the United States. And if, after a week, President Petro still denies the return of illegals, then that tariff will be raised to 50%. By Sunday, Petro walked back his threat and even offered his presidential plane as one of the transports for the returning Colombians.

The American people are relieved that President Trump is rectifying what President Biden broke. Biden allowed an invasion at our southern border, created a humanitarian crisis, facilitated a nationwide rise in crime, and threatened the safety and security of our country by allowing millions of unvetted illegal aliens into the country. [Because of Trump’s actions] we’re back, and it’s cause for celebration.

AMERICANISM

American Legislative History: Alien Enemies Act

Enacted by the 5th United States Congress and signed into law by President John Adams on July 6, 1798, The Alien Enemies Act (officially "An Act Respecting Alien Enemies") was passed to supplement the Alien Friends Act, granting the government additional powers to regulate non-citizens that would take effect in times of war." Under this law, the president could authorize the arrest, relocation, or deportation of any male over the age of 14 who hailed from a foreign enemy country. It also provided some legal protections for those subject to the law. Unlike the other acts, this act was largely unopposed by the Democratic-Republicans.

The Alien Enemies Act was not allowed to expire with the other Alien and Sedition Acts, and it remains in effect as Chapter 3, Sections 21–24 of Title 50 of the United States Code. President James Madison invoked the act against British nationals during the War of 1812. President Woodrow Wilson invoked the act against nationals of the Central Powers during World War I. In 1918, an amendment to the act struck the provision restricting the law to males.

On December 7, 1941, in response to the bombing of Pearl Harbor, President Franklin D. Roosevelt used the authority of the revised Alien Enemies Act to issue presidential proclamations #2525 (Alien Enemies – Japanese), #2526 (Alien Enemies – German), and #2527 (Alien Enemies – Italian), to apprehend, restrain, secure, and remove Japanese, German, and Italian non-citizens. Roosevelt later cited further wartime powers to issue Executive Order 9066, which interned Japanese Americans using powers unrelated to the Alien Enemies Act. Hostilities with Germany and Italy ended in May 1945, and President Harry S. Truman issued presidential proclamation #2655 on July 14. The proclamation gave the attorney general authority regarding enemy aliens within the continental United States, to decide whether they are "dangerous to the public peace and safety of the United States," to order them removed, and to create regulations governing their removal, citing the Alien Enemies Act. On September 8, 1945, Truman issued presidential proclamation #2662, which authorized the secretary of state to remove enemy aliens that had been sent to the United States from Latin American countries. On April 10, 1946, Truman issued presidential proclamation #2685, which modified the previous proclamation, and set a 30-day deadline for removal.

In Ludecke v. Watkins (1948), the Supreme Court interpreted the time of release under the Alien Enemies Act. German alien Kurt G. W. Lüdecke was detained on December 8, 1941, under Proclamation 2526, and continued to be held after cessation of hostilities. In 1947, Ludecke petitioned for a writ of habeas corpus to order his release, after the Attorney General ordered him deported. The court ruled 5-4 to release Ludecke but also found that the Alien Enemies Act allowed for detainment beyond the time hostilities ceased until an actual treaty was signed with the hostile nation or government.

On September 20, 2024, Donald Trump announced that if elected president for a second term he would invoke the Alien Enemies Act of 1798 to expedite the removal of non-citizens and criminal networks operating in the United States.
